By Michael Lim Ulloa
and Jocelyn R. Uy

SEN. RICHARD GORDON YESTERDAY accused the Gen. Juanito Sotto of subverting efforts for the safe release of one of the three international hostages of the Red Cross (RCRC) and western held captive by the Abu Sayyaf in Jolo, Sulu.

Gordon and Sotto's "fractured the chain of command" by expediting troops could be contained on Thursday.

CARP back on track in Congress

By Linda R. Salazar

THERE IS HOPE THAT THE "HEART and soul" of the agrarian reform program may yet be restored.

According to Albing Rop, Edilao Lagman, a joint panel from the House and the Senate has agreed to put back the compulsory acquisition of private agricultural land into a bill extending the life of the Comprehensive Agrarian Reform Law (CARP) for another five years.

"This is a breakthrough," Lagman said, adding that the consensus among legislators who attended the meeting was "clear and firm."

The CARP law reclassification scheme introduced by the Comprehensive Agrarian Reform Law of 1988, as RA 6637, expired in December 2008.

Last December, Congress passed a law extending the CARP for six more months, or until June 2009, to allow the Department of Agrarian Reform to complete the land distribution process.

The resolution, however, retained

CAGAYAN DE ORO CITY—AFTER finding out she was a topnotcher in the last Nursing Board exam, it was time for the Bontoc District to start looking for work abroad.

After all, this was why she studied nursing—to earn a good living so she could help her family.

But when she learned that the government was deploying at least 10,000 nurses to some of the country's re-

LIFE IS A BASKET OF STRAWBERRIES

For as long as strawberries have been around, Agave and Bougainvillea have been synonymous with straw berries. These two of the local fruits are harvested dozens of years for the domestic and Manila markets. Which is the case for the annual celebration of the strawberry festival in La Trinidad town in Benguet.

'I am Erap, they call me Erap'

and Christina O. Amodeo

FORMER PRESIDENT Joseph "Erap" Estrada and Sen. Panilo Lacson yesterday challenged those trying to impute them in the Docer-Corhio double murder to bring their allegations to court, and vowed to meet the charges against them head-on.

Saying it wasn't in his blood to kill people, Estrada rejected claims in an affidavit by former Senior Supt. Cesar Manzano II—that he ordered the two-killers to be executed in "Big cut"—that the two men were executed in his name.

Estrada said he was not aware he was being referred to as "Bigote" (Bigot) by other people and added, with a chuckle: "Pig may bigote, delinido ay bigote. Kita mo sa New Pines? Di yan have a manote, you are a marked man. Look at what happened to Nica Pines!"

Pines was President Macapagal-Arroyo's son.

ALABANG BOYS CASE

GMA orders raps vs DOJ prosecutors

By TJ Burgos

TAKING A CUE FROM A FACT-FINDING panel that she had formed, President Macapagal-Arroyo yesterday ordered the filing of administrative charges against key state prosecutors for the purported misbehavior of the case in making the "Alabang Boys."

The President also set aside the prosecutors' resolution dropping the drug case against Richard Broderick, Joseph Joseph and Joseph Tiozon—all residents of the exclusive Ayala Al-bay Village in Muntinlupa City—and ordered the Department of Justice (DOJ) to charge them in court. She likewise ordered the Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency (PDEA) to conduct within 30 days an administrative investigation of its agents who allegedly misbehaved Broderick during his four-year operation.

Secretary Jorge Rodriguez, however, did not make public the report of the committee, saying this was privileged communication between it and the President.

Perdone announced his Arroyo's order to the Presidential Anti-Corruption Commission (PACC) to file an administrative case against Chief State Prosecutor Antonio Zales and State Prosecutor Philip Riego for negligence.

Perdone said the negligence had to do with the prosecutors' "voluntary conduct of review" of the resolution drafted by Prosecutor John Rendo and dated Dec. 2, 2008.

His Arroyo also directed the PACC to file administrative charges against key

'First Dog' arriving in April, Barack tells 'Tonight'

HUNTERS, CALIFORNIA—US President Barack Obama was yesterday smiling and light-hearted in an unusual appearance on America's top-rated late-night variety show on Thursday, moving deftly from the economic crisis to the April arrival of a "First Dog" in the White House.

In an appearance on "The Tonight

Show with Jay Leno," the first by a sitting president, Obama talked seriously about his economic plans and raised strong support for cabinet-level Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner.

Wearing a tie and tie and an American flag pin on his lapel, the president pitched his budget and said

Palace denies abandoning 3 Red Cross workers in Jolo

By TJ Burgos

MALACANANG YESTERDAY denied that the government had abandoned the three Red Cross workers to die in the hands of bandits in the jungles of Jolo.

"The government is doing what it can under very difficult conditions to ensure their safety. That's why the statement as issued in Jolo saying 'Why does the government want to let die 3' is wrong," Press Secretary Gabe Benardo said yesterday.

Also more than 40 days in the hands of bandits, Italian Red Cross lawyer recently learned on Thursday that the government seemed to have abandoned him and his companions.

"Why does the government want to let die 3? I don't understand," he said.

Naga, Filipino writer Juan Ignacio and British Army nurse spoke with him, Richard Gordon, by phone from the Abu Sayyaf base in Jolo.

Benardo said the military had offered security for the three and others before their trip to Mis-amis but that they rejected it.

"So you all know, you know those conditions they love to hear," he said, referring to the military's offer in a chain with the kidnappers.

Benardo said President Ma's administration had not ended such the conflict of the three-day soldiers.

"I'm afraid to see killed and wounded soldiers who have sacrificed their lives for the safety of the hostages to be around of such. Let's be clear. The government is not the enemy here," he said.

No release: Gordon vents ire on general

Manila—Without the knowledge of the military brass, "Unfortunately, ... there are people who left Jolo because they can't go ahead with war. But we can't justify this through war on the island of the Philippines," the general said in an interview with ABC.

Gordon, chair of the Philippine Human Rights and Democracy Foundation and a member of the ECCC Council of Governors, said retired Gen. Alexander Tan, National Security Council Undersecretary for Policy, said in a page. "I called to the three top officials assigned to President Ma's Jolo trip in the Philippines," he said.

Benardo said the military had offered security for the three and others before their trip to Mis-

amis but that they rejected it.

"So you all know, you know those conditions they love to hear," he said, referring to the military's offer in a chain with the kidnappers.

Benardo said President Ma's administration had not ended such the conflict of the three-day soldiers.

"I'm afraid to see killed and wounded soldiers who have sacrificed their lives for the safety of the hostages to be around of such. Let's be clear. The government is not the enemy here," he said.

GENERAL TAN
Gordon said Tan should be investigated for promoting kidnapping troops without informing superiors.

On March 20, 2009, a draft of a senate resolution by Senator Juan Ponce Enrile was published in the Philippine Daily Inquirer. The said resolution is senate resolution no. 945.

Introduced by Senator Juan Ponce Enrile

A RESOLUTION
CALLING FOR THE IMMEDIATE RESIGNATION OF THE OFFICIALS OF THE SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION AND STRONGLY CONDEMNING THEIR INCOMPETENCE, INEPTITUDE AND INEFFECTUALITY IN PREVENTING THEIR MEMBERS TO PRACTICE FRAUD, FRAUDULENT AND UNCONSCIOUS PRACTICES OF INDIVIDUALS AND COMPANIES ESPECIALLY IN THE PRE-NEED INDUSTRY SUCH AS THE LEGACY CONSOLIDATED PLAN CAUSING THE LOSS OF MILLIONS OF PEOPLES IN INVESTMENTS OF THOUSANDS OF PLAN-HOLDERS WHO WERE ATTRACTED BY THESE COMPANIES

Whereas, under Section 2 of Republic Act No. 8799 or the Securities Regulations Code, it is the declared policy of the state to promote the development of the capital market, protect investors, maintain it not totally eliminate insider trading and other fraudulent or manipulative devices and practices which cause distortion in the free market;

Whereas, RA No. 8799 likewise mandates the Securities and Exchange Commission to effectively regulate and monitor the capital market and widely disseminate reliable information for the protection of the investing public;

Whereas, with regard to the pre-need industry, the Securities and Regulations Commission also gives the widest latitude to prescribe rules and regulations on the pre-need industry, including registration of pre-need plans, licensing of persons involved in the sale of pre-need plans, requiring disclosures to prospective plan holders, imposing capital, bonding and other financial responsibility, and establishing trust funds for the payment of benefits under such plans;

Whereas, in the case of the Legacy Consolidated Plan, the SEC as regulator has widely failed to monitor the operations of the pre-need company. Furthermore, the SEC's announcements that they were "suspicious" when the company filed for dissolution were a clear indication that the SEC had not been dutifully performing its mandated task in the statement of the plan holders of this particular pre-need company;

Whereas, similar incidents have already taken place in the past involving pre-need groups, such as the College Assistance Plan and the Pacific Educational Plan companies, which clearly demonstrated the need to amend and/or revise the SEC's rules and regulations in the pre-need industry to reprimand, if not eliminate, the same problems now faced by the clientele of the Legacy Consolidated Plan who have invested their life savings in various plans to ensure their personal retirement as well as their children's education through these companies' services;

Whereas, as guardian of the securities and capital market, the SEC clearly failed to perform its duties and exercise its powers in dealing with dubious business practices and outright scams which have resulted in the loss of billions of hard-earned money of Filipino investors such as in the case of Bancor Credit Charter Bank, Prepaid Mortgage and other pre-selling schemes similar to Singaporean Midland Life's Performance Products Investment (PPI) scheme;

Whereas, even, based on the testimonies presented during the public hearings conducted by the Senate Committees on Trade and Industry, and Banking, Financial Institutions and Consumer, there is sufficient evidence to show that the SEC's failure was not only a nonfeasance but a case of incompetence, but also by questionable and corrupt practices of the officials of this government agency;

Whereas, despite the ample authority vested upon the SEC, this agency has been seriously negligent of its duties and responsibilities, has remained passive in exercising its oversight functions, and was unacceptably slow in dealing with the problems falling within their mandate;

Now, therefore, be it resolved, as it is hereby resolved, to strongly condemn the incompetence and failure of the Securities and Exchange Commission and the ability of its officials in performing their mandate to protect the public from predatory and unconscionable practices of individuals and companies especially in the pre-need industry such as the Legacy Consolidated Plan causing the loss of millions of pesos in investments of thousands of plan-holders who were duped by these companies;

Be it resolved further that the Senate calls for the immediate resignation of the officials of the Securities and Exchange Commission and urges the Executive Department to hold these officials accountable by filing the necessary cases against them who have not only been negligent in their duty but have also served as agents in carrying out such grand schemes to defraud the people.

Tuna capital execs slam coal plant

GENERAL SANTOS CITY—THE BUDGET OF RESISTANCE against the construction of a 200-megawatt coal-fired power plant in Masina, Sarangani Province is becoming stronger.

The town is joining the growing of the 1000-signature General Santos Power (GSP) petition, which will start filing in October with the General Santos City Council.

On Thursday, residents took to the streets in a peaceful demonstration to demand the cancellation of the coal-fired power plant in Masina, Sarangani Province. The protesters, led by the town's mayor, Mayor Romeo M. Magsaysay, said the project is a threat to the town's environment and the health of its residents.

They also said the project is a threat to the town's environment and the health of its residents. The protesters, led by the town's mayor, Mayor Romeo M. Magsaysay, said the project is a threat to the town's environment and the health of its residents.

Fishing threatened
"It's not only Masina town but the whole city which will be affected by whatever pollution the coal-fired power plant will release into the environment," said Mayor Magsaysay.

The coal-fired power plant is located in Masina, Sarangani Province, about 100 kilometers from General Santos City.

The protesters, led by the town's mayor, Mayor Romeo M. Magsaysay, said the project is a threat to the town's environment and the health of its residents. 15 towns in 2 Samar provinces without doctors

By Vicente Luter
Reporter/Editor

INABANG CITY—SIPATAN municipalities in two Samar provinces have no resident doctors, an official of the Department of Health said.

The official, who is in charge of the Department of Health in Samar, said that the situation is a result of the lack of incentives for doctors to work in these areas.

The Ateneo MVP Center Sesquicentennial Leadership Forum

MARCH 23, 2009, 10:00 A.M., HENRY LEE IRWIN THEATER, ATENEO DE MANILA UNIVERSITY with guest speaker

TONY BLAIR

Former Prime Minister of Great Britain and Northern Ireland
Special Envoy, Quartet on the Middle East

The Speaker

This year, we have the honor of hearing Tony Blair, former Prime Minister of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and Special Envoy of the Quartet on the Middle East, speak on "The Leader as Nation-Builders in a Time of Globalization." During his term as Prime Minister, he brought a new energy and charisma to the British political scene, initiated party, economic, and constitutional reforms, and contributed significantly to the Northern Ireland peace process. In his present roles as diplomat and educator, he continues to work for unity and understanding between nations and faiths.

The Forum

Beyond its infrastructure, the Manuel V. Pangilinan Center for Student Leadership is a venue for the growth of ideas and inspiration. The Ateneo MVP Center Leadership Forum features pioneers and movers from different fields, and inspires young people to become committed leaders who are determined not only to head organizations, but also to effect long-lasting and meaningful social change.

Manuel V. Pangilinan is the man behind this leadership forum. His legendary work ethic, strong social involvement, and passionate commitment to our country make him a model for this generation of Ateneans.

The Ateneo MVP Center Leadership Forum in 2006 and 2007 featured such world-class leaders as Chaisiri Sophonpanich, President of the Bangkok Bank, the largest bank in Thailand and in the ASEAN region; Ronnie C. Chan, Chairman of the Hang Lung Group, Ltd., one of the largest real estate development, management, and investment firms in Hong Kong; and Aleksander Kwasniewski, former President of Poland.

The Ateneo at 150

Almost 150 years ago, priests from the Society of Jesus arrived in Manila and began the Escuela Municipal de Manila on December 10, 1859. A century, five decades, and two relocations later, the Ateneo de Manila University has four campuses in three cities in Metro Manila. The Jesuit values with which the school began remain vibrant and relevant as it celebrates its sesquicentennial. The three themes of Celebrating Excellence, Deepening Spirituality, and Building the Nation encompass and encapsulate all that the Ateneo stands for and is committed to today.

Shabu worth P200M seized in Tondo lab raid; 3 nabbed

By Joanne L. Andros

AGENTS OF THE NATIONAL BUREAU OF Investigation (NBI) have arrested three individuals and seized worth P200 million worth of suspected counterfeit, adulterated, or stolen goods, and equipment for its manufacture in a raid Wednesday in a clandestine drug laboratory in Tondo, Manila.

The three individuals arrested, NBI Director General Estanislao Fernandez, said the raid was the first in the series of operations to break the operations of the drug syndicate.

of illegal drug manufacturers that resulted them to set up the nation's largest facility at a last-story building at 68 Francisco Laguna Avenue, Balic, Tondo.

Warning: arrested the second suspected Tondo Police (TPO) officer, Cesar Mares, who is believed to be a courier working for an international drug syndicate. The two other individuals arrested, Cesar Mares, and Cesar Mares, who has been in the country for 20 years and reportedly worked off the hill, NBI said on the seized material of the Tondo laboratory is located.

It showed that the laboratory was newly established based on the condition of the equipment used by the suspects in manufacturing the drug.

The raid, conducted by the NBI Manila, NBI and NBI officers, was the product of a series of surveillance on NBI after he arrived in Manila on Feb. 26.

Tondo's Ministry of Justice, in cooperation with NBI, had tipped off the NBI on the seized material of the Tondo laboratory.

3 'members' of notorious gang arrested

Cite Manila councilors in contempt, SC asked

By Erik S. Sison

A GROUP OF LAWYERS ASKED THE Supreme Court yesterday to cite Manila councilors in contempt for refusing to comply with the court's order to produce the city's trash data despite a pending motion to stop its hearing.

Manila Councilors of the City Council of Manila refused to comply with the court's order to produce the city's trash data despite a pending motion to stop its hearing. The court's order to produce the city's trash data despite a pending motion to stop its hearing.

The comment prompted a swift response from Indiana President Mitchell Daniels, who encouraged Obama to "stick to his meetings with all comers but avoid limos." "Get on and be for each hardcover, $1.50 per paperback and $4.50 for a book-on-tape."

In a week where Obama unveiled his executive order for creating a culture of minority inclusion and diversity, a disclosure from Rod on Tuesday showed that he signed a new $500,000 book agreement five days before taking office in January.

Adams said Obama would receive $250,000 of that for an adaptation of his screenplay, "Obama: From My Father," for young readers. The other $250,000 will go to the publisher in the deal, which was first reported on Thursday by the Washington Post.

The publishing agreement was not announced by the White House but was noted in a routine financial disclosure form in the House Office of Public Records. It is the latest indication of how Obama has profited from the books as the result of his celebrity has grown.

When Obama wrote "Dreams From My Father," which came out in 1995, he did not want enough books to pay back the advance of $20,817. But when it was repaid after his speech to the Democratic National Convention in 2008, sales soared, which led to another book deal worth $1.9 million.

the fact, Johnson agreed to serve as a review editor, book, and a children's book. He wrote in his disclosure report that he joined and is still in the book business as he left college.

John R. Burton, a Washington lawyer who represents Churns in his publishing work, said on Thursday that the $200,000 agreement was not for a new book but rather for a license to the president's autobiography, which could be reworked into a book for the middle-school students. Churns has already signed about 50 similar licensing arrangements, Burton said, typically when the book is more likely to be another biography.

A review of Obama's disclosure reports since he started in Washington last year shows a net increase from film royalties to a rapid rise in his wealth, thanks to his work as a best-selling author. In 2005, he reported royalties of $1.15 million and in 2006, $572,490. In 2007, after his second book was published, royalties increased to $4.1 million. They were $2.46 million in 2008.

NEW YORK—AN AUTOPSY OF 75-year-old Natalia Richardson on Thursday indicated that the dead of brain hemorrhage caused the "fatal injury" to her head, the first medical examination of the New York City and Stoughton, 43, died on Wednesday in a Manhattan hospital, two days after what appeared to be a minor fall on a beginner's downhill course at Mount St. The initially rattled driver needed treatment but no longer later complained of a severe headache and was taken to emergency at a hospital.

The autopsy suggests that the fall tore an artery in Richardson's head, resulting in bleeding in an area between the skull and the lining covering the brain, called the dura mater.

The official cause of death was an epistemic carcinoma. A hemangioma is a collection of blood, and epistemic in this case refers to the space between the skull and the dura. It surgery is performed quickly it may be possible to save the woman's life, doctors said.

The descriptions of Othman's behavior at the toll fly with the initially subtle symptoms of the condition, said a brain surgeon not involved in her case, Dr David J. Langer, the director of neurosurgical oncology at St. Luke's-Roosevelt Hospital, Bell County Medical

Pacquiao insists: It's ABS-CBN

Solar Sports plans P150-M case, expects Manny to retract statement

By Huang R. Castillo
and James W. Papp

HOW'S THIS FOR AN UN- dercard?

Against the backdrop of one of the most important boxing matches this year, two giant television networks are riling up their viewers as they prepare to go head-on against each other in a galaxy courtroom feud worth about $150 million.

In one corner is Solar Sports. With Manny Pacquiao returning that he will have his May 2 fight against Ricky Hatton moved by another network, Solar said it will fight the Solar and ABS-CBN to court it, at the very least, with an intention against their newly formed partnership.

In the other corner is ABS-CBN, which issued a stern warning to Solar Sports to stop its legal ploys that will not budge back in to bid. The show-heavy media firm said it will fight all the way to protect its investment.

Solar Sports, which owns the right to air Pacquiao's fight with Hatton, is optimistic it managed to convince the Filipino ring king to change his mind about changing to its side of the legal confrontation.

"My feeling is he will retract this initial announcement to look up with ABS-CBN," said Solar vice president for sales and marketing, Jude Torres.

But three options were blown to bits by another announcement launched from Las Vegas, where Pacquiao is training. The Sun Star Super News said that the network has signed a deal with ABS-CBN.

"My feeling is still the same," Pacquiao's body announced after ABS-CBN's highly new program. "I am prepared to take any fight to the limit."

PACQUIAO: I hope you watch my fight on ABS-CBN.

May 2 at 10 hope people will come out and watch my fight on ABS-CBN."

Pacquiao's announcement came at the heels of a press conference by Solar Sports, where it was revealed that the network's top brass—president William Tiong and CEO Peter Chua—were here for the United States to meet with Pacquiao and form an exclusive deal with him, which would have the fight on Solar Sports.

In that same press briefing, Solar Sports made it clear that it would be more than willing to go to court to set the dispute.

"If things don't work out in the next three to four days, I expect early next week that a case or an injunction or a 302 will be filed against Manny and ABS-CBN," said Tiong, who added that the case could be worth $150 million.

However, ABS-CBN made it clear it wasn't giving up its track to protect the interests of Pacquiao.

"Manny approached ABS-CBN and as to what, he will have the network of our support," said an ABS-CBN spokesman.

The reason it is the same network is that under the terms of the fight, the network is ABS-CBN is an ABS-CBN exclusive.

In its press briefing, Solar Sports denied claims that Pacquiao broke off from them and because of delayed payment, adding that what they had not forwarded to the fight were the "advance payments" he was entitled to.

"He may have been misled or misinformed by the Solar Sports management. We have a contract with him," said Solar Sports lawyer Joseph Laguarda.

"But the fact is, Solar Sports is not in compliance with all the obligations under the agreement. And Solar is already an ABS-CBN connected to the agreement."

"We were asked for advance," said legal counsel Stephen David. "But even if you say we didn't pay him advance, we didn't receive any advance."

But according to the information gathered by the Inquirer, Pacquiao's lawyer said he was not paid because of late payment of royalty from the was supposed to be paid P40 and 100 per fight in three installments starting on Feb. 4, or 10 days after the two parties signed the contract for the fight.

The dispute between General Santos City reportedly involved a payment of P15 million—23 percent of the total—very last March 27.

Adding a dash of intrigue to the boxing event, it is the fact that in Solar Sports' corner is GMA-7, the former rival of ABS-CBN.

GMA-7 doesn't own the exclusive right to broadcast Pacquiao's fight, but signed two broadcast agreements with Solar Sports to air those fights on their channel.

Pacquiao has two shows with GMA-7 and has an existing contract that has been long-standing on shows or programs affiliated with

ABS-CBN.

"Manny's fight is not program, show or presentation of ABS-CBN," the Legal Network said in a statement. "The network will only be using Pacquiao's boxing matches that will be produced by his team."

Gov't taps P4.5B from Japan for pump-priming

Loan payable over 30 years at 1.4% a year

By Michelle K. Narita

THE BANGKO SENTRAL NG PHILIPINAS HAS GIVEN the go-ahead for the national government to borrow 9.3 billion yen (about P4.5 billion) from the Japanese government to fund projects and programs that will help pump-prime the economy.

The official development assistance (ODA) will be provided through the Japan International Cooperation Agency, which is tasked to manage the level of liquidity and foreign exchange circulating in the economy.

"The loan has been approved in principle. The loan will help accelerate the government's Development Policy Support Program," BSP Governor Amador T. Espinoza Jr. told reporters yesterday.

Under the program, loan granted by development banks like Jica are used to support the government's credit budget.

Loans provided under this program are not tied to a specific infrastructure project, but are generally meant to fund activities that the Philippine government deems necessary to pursue pressing

Rock Ed's fresh take

By Pam Pancer

YOU'LL FIND THIS A SUB-prise—but not all schools take care of coordinating their students' graduation photos.

Freddie (Ed), Rock Ed Philippines, decided to give public high school graduates this year a gift—graduation pictures so they can remember this special milestone.

Gang Bading who leads Rock Ed Philippines, said, "It's really about celebrating the high school graduates."

"They started with Eton de Lugo High School near UP Diliman, Quez, who taught there for four years when she was still a UP student, well, I distinctly remember seeing they had good photos and I could remember her any incident through the years—but they didn't have good photos then. The thought has stayed with me all these years."

What Rock Ed did is bring volunteer photographers to the schools. They set up a makeshift studio in the school using a round one and professional lights borrowed from friends. "We saw old Rock Ed pictures from our parents to be the children's future memories, and then the photographers take their place and shoot," Gang said. The service, called Fresh Take, is completely free.

In the beginning, the biggest challenge was getting the school principals. "It was a big mission. There were schools that we didn't because, I suppose, this was a great effort and expense and the thought that it was being given free was just a bit surprising for them. But once our group showed up early in the morning and met the students themselves, we described what we were going to offer them and how we were going to take responsibility. The thoughtful response of the students made things quite easier to explain to the faculty eventually."

It gives public high school graduates a gift to remember their milestone

CAPTION: A student getting a hair makeover by a volunteer.

BETTER with makeup

It is refreshing work that takes a lot of time and energy. Imagine an order book of 600 students today up, ready to have their Gang, has referred to as their "assembly line." "There was a growing line and a long line of girls waiting for their hair to be styled and makeup to be applied."

After three at Lugo, Rock Ed's next stop

ROCKED-02

How you can help

UNO 2005, "I THIRN THE REAL accomplishment here was that many citizens, volunteers, students, photographers, professionals and hobbyists wanted others to share their resources and time for others to be helped."

Here's what Rock Ed needs for Fresh Take:

1. Photographers with a DSLR camera willing to make up early and take photos
2. Studio lights and stands
3. Volunteer makeup artists and stylists
4. Wig and graduation caps
5. Water, juice, snacks for the Fresh Take team on those days in schools
6. Volunteer students to facilitate movement of students from one photo day
7. Administrative coordination with the public school and you
8. Printing costs are Rock Ed's big concern now Gang said. "We want to call on High School Bands 1989 and 1990 to celebrate their 20th and 18th year reunion by taking on this project. One student from your band can pay for the photos of one public school graduate of 2009. I think it's very doable, it's just a lot of marching and giving of small amounts to many people. Of course, if a photo professional place or a company that supplies photo printers could also sponsor this fine band, that'd be great, too!"

Makeup shopping goes online

By Rudy de Niro

FROM THE MOUTH "YOUR SHOPPING" on television, we usually think of makeup as being sold in a store or a local website that focuses a shopping and online payment system. But of the online store, you can make payments or bank deposits for transactions.

In May 2008, 25-year-old Tammara Tammara, a former beauty queen, realized she could share her love of makeup with other people online. She founded TammaraOnline.com (<http://www.tammaraonline.com>), a site that offers online makeup shopping.

TammaraOnline.com offers Beauty, Nails, Hair, and Makeup's products, with other brands like L'Oréal, the makeup is cheaper than those in department stores.

The products are supported by brand, makeup and hair care line. The site has a "Hot" section, where you can request for a specific product that isn't sold in the store anymore. TammaraOnline.com has a network of suppliers that can help you find that shade of lipstick you've been wanting all those years.

Paying online is done through PayPal for now, not through credit cards. Tammara says PayPal is actually safer than credit card use. TammaraOnline.com is not a store or a store. It's a network of suppliers that can help you find that shade of lipstick you've been wanting all those years.

Prices are in US dollars, since TammaraOnline.com's market is global, it gets orders from the US and Asian countries.

I HATE THE FACT THAT I WAS the grinch of this year's Deviation Day. I hadn't thought of anything deviant to wear or do on the hallowed day—and it pained me to see every past deity the scene while I work in my secret lab.

Deviation Day is organized annually by Shogun, Andrew (Chubbuck) on my Upstairs, Gelling at Organizing Angles on Chapeau, and my supermodel, the student-based organization of the BA Anthropology program here at UP Manila.

It's a day when everyone gets to act, dress and behave freely—just the way they want to.

Often is the ultimate manifestation of deviance. But on the nose at the Day's 12th year, many of the students have reached that level.

"Deviation Day gives the students of UP Manila an opportunity to think free and break norms," said Mike Salazar, head of Shogun Angles, who wears key pins and skirts made out of clay. "It's a great way to make everyone feel what it's like being not who they are normally."

Deviation is mentioned in student fashion and many have noticed like the most unlikely people wearing their best clothes. It's like the Devil's March time and UP Manila's Office

ANGEL in her outfit

UP Diliman has the Chub Run, UP Mindanao has this.

Free and deviant—for a day shouldn't wear long sleeves because they're not long in some ways.

Wearing Free Pin on the Deviation Day students were the North Pin and Andrew Key Salazar, in attention-grabbing outfits. They stopped after giving their speech, leaving their shirts and some clothes and some materials to become beautiful.

"From other people think of you is just a deviant of who you are," they said.

Wired photos of the Department of Social Sciences said deviance has a point. "Deviation is a perfect language any psychology—or deviance day, students trying making the."

In the talent competition, Mike Salazar tried to be the high notes, wearing a head 18, wearing a crown, the year David Price.

Paul Ramos and our group spent a while time looking at the year David Price.

Lobelia sang her version of "Angels in My Arms."

At the end of the day, school and other local bands played music of different genres—hip-hop, alternative rock, and "Newcomers."

Miss Mark M. Salazar

2009 Correspondent

WITH THE 2009/2010 school this means some more very real things: vacations, beach trips, summer jobs, birthday and even summer sleep.

Summer-appropriate clothes also cover the scene, more of them bright, some and lightweight. It is summer, after all, where everyone just wants to relax and stay dry—while looking fabulously cool.

Last March 11 at People's Palace, Graduate 3, one of the most popular Pinapple Island in summer collection composed of preppy pieces with tropical touches.

For girls, the trend has been such as polka and florals in shades of blue, and in stripes and plaids. And the trend? Preppy apparel with with at least graphic elements.

For girls, there's a wide range of candy, "Pinapple Island" in blue, green and gold tones, and more top with print on top. It is a trend by people before the trend, but only a few (preppy body-climbing and, finally, they're also made of light fabric so they don't stick to the body).

In the underwear line, one-piece sets in candy-colored stripes, plaid with vertical stripes, and bright blue.

Also, a trend by a woman in the trend line can wear two different ways as beach party dress or bikini cover up.

The summer you don't want to miss is wear just and bright or sunny. You can still say your beloved Mark, pray and other dark clothes. The key is to incorporate fun colors or prints, and you're ready to say yes to the sun.

The new reincarnation of Facebook

Remember, fun comes with a price

By Bianca Conway

FACEBOOK CURRENTLY HAS MORE active users around the world, but more than 100 million. Although it's a social networking platform, the Facebook site has been criticized and even called "the most dangerous place on the Internet" by some.

Facebook has been called "the most dangerous place on the Internet" by some. It's a social networking platform, but it's also a place where people can be mean, cruel, and even dangerous.

What you need to know about privacy on Facebook

There are friends—and there are friends

By Bianca Conway

1. Friend-lock all your information

If you want to keep your information private, you need to lock it down. Facebook has a privacy settings page where you can control who can see your information.

2. Use your friend lists

Facebook has a feature called "friend lists" where you can organize your friends into different groups. This way, you can control who can see your information.

3. Set photo tag options

Facebook has a feature called "photo tags" where you can tag your friends in photos. This way, you can control who can see your information.

'Duplicity' turns spy games into slick fun

LOS ANGELES—In "Michael Clayton," his first outing as a director, writer-screenwriter Tony Gilroy used the thriller format to investigate how shakedown and sleazy can corrupt the walls of institutions who do the dirty work of modern corporations.

The second film is an autobiographical, "Duplicity"—which could just as easily have been the title of his first film—covers the same territory again with the thriller twist: not only this time, the whole thing is a complex-in-check that whenever casual differences the characters suffer get subverted in an intricate and cerebral con game.

Flowers and foliage

The movie is a farce, with plenty of tongue and sarcasm that will have audiences chuckling at their own taste. It's also not to miss, holding its characters as its theme, perhaps even shaking its head knowingly at their flaws and foibles. With John Belushi and Chris O'Neal in the lead (not two terrific characters as one led by Paul Simon and Eric Williams), the film is poised to play strongly to adults in sophisticated theaters.

They remain like a busy street with a jumble of businesses and a web of conflicting motivations. The movie has all the money and excitement of an old Cold War spy film, only these spies work in corporate operations for heavily competitive pharmaceutical giants, in Washington terms, the Intelligence has descended from secret agents to

The film begins in 2003, when CIA officer, Oliver Hammond (Robert), and MI6 agent, Eve Knox (Dunst), have a rendezvous with destiny. At a US embassy party in Dubai, she catches his eye, they slip off to his bedroom, she slips him a Mickey and swaps classified documents from his room. He isn't her only let-

Pinay shows off winning form in dance tilt

By Maria Kalishman-Gonzales

DANCE DANCE COMPETITION shows on TV have come and gone, but none captured our attention as much as Step It Up and Dance. It brings our inner wild feelings to control a sexy, wild string of dance styles, from swing to jazz, hip-hop to modern, etc.

A pleasant surprise was that one of the finalists was a Pinay. Maria was Jennifer Gonzalez, who had everything going for her, and who provided very little competition for the 6-foot winner, Gaby Garcia. After her performance, she had an ongoing dancing persona.

ability that registered as well on TV as it did onstage. She was both a good, considerate and a bit of a wild, wild party.

In fact, although it was Jennifer who won, Maria got off with a good prize. She was also able to play a part in the Step It Up hip-hop musical film, Glee.

Technique and passion
The winner, Jennifer, was indeed a dancer. She danced with such passion and unique style that it was clear she was not just a dancer but a performer. Her lack of technical perfection, which Garcia also was probably the guy in the middle, in the center that he had technique and passion in a very clear way, but he looked like, as our judge said, a total professional.

The program was good because you could see how the judges could be very tough on the competitors, and everyone believed it was a real dance competition.

The advice of the judges and the competition for each episode helped the contestants to really grow, and then we saw some great dance moves in the final who made it in the end. In fact, a production number that had together, not in a final that was like the day it was a professional dance group.

From "Step It Up and Dance," I learned that technical perfection is something, but it's not the final show. And, emotion is moving, but it can be technical if you lack technique. With both, you can do what dance is supposed to do, and a step, "Step It Up and Dance" shows how that great dance, like any other art form, is something, but it's something to watch.

Interaction
At its best, there should be interaction between performers and audience. It is like the difference between being silent, and talking with.

CAMPAIGN for dancing personality improved with more TV and coverage.

Clooney's quiet 'ER' return boosts ratings

LOS ANGELES—GEORGE Clooney's return to "ER" after a hiatus in a long-awaited episode that gave the TV hospital series its best viewership since its first season, the show was in new shape as the show was in its final season.

CLOONEY'S return to the show was a surprise, but it was a surprise that made him an instant crowd favorite.

REIGNING ER's success. The groundbreaking series was on the air for more than a decade, and the show was in its final season.

Spurred on by the mid-2000s, the show was in its final season, and it was a surprise that made him an instant crowd favorite.

Never a plain Jane, Fonda makes Broadway comeback

NEW YORK—TO MEET Jane Fonda these days means getting past her eight-pound fluffy gatekeeper first. Tules, a white Bichon-like dog, is never very far from her 71-year-old mistress—part confidence, part wiggly joy and part security blanket.

How irresponsible are they? Funds, making her first leap on Broadway in 46 years, faced out the hard way. She sat silently hooting in a captivated audience during a curtain call when she happened to look down.

"I saw through my legs this whole thing and I thought, 'That's not what I think it is!'" She, I found the click-click-click of her tie as she walked the stage," she recalls. The tie had escaped from her backstage handler, wandered out to the delight of the audience, and turned into a starring role.

"She knows what she's saying, man," Florida says with a smile. "She knows that I mean. It's over, and that we're going to be reunited. We come together for you."

Storage methods

Taken isn't the only one mislabeled these days. Jeans, in what she calls the "second sense of her third act," has thrown herself into stage work, with characteristic gusto—in surprise for a woman who doesn't do things halfway. "I never thought the day would come that I would look forward to being onstage every night," she shares. "It's scary to some people, and I would have thought it was crazy but it's not."

In a recent interview, she fights off a late-winter cold with antibiotics and tea as she discusses her newfound love of the Internet, the legacy of her father, and the Vietnamese protesters who continue to haunt her.

the writer-director Andrew A. Kosove.

play, "El Venenoso," Fonda plays an ailing movie-theater employee who discovers why her boss, Ludwig van Beethoven, spent so much time at the end of his life shoveling over a third-story walk. Though suffering from anemphorophic lateral sclerosis—at Leo Gehrig's disease—Fonda's character returns to Germany to find the answer in Beethoven's letters, for they unravel her relationship with her

"I needed an actor who had a strong emotional life and a great mind, as well. I found a woman who had both," says Kuchner.

Perfect time
Baudouin picked the perfect time to lure French back coverage. His script arrived just as she was writing a book about aging, exploring why so many great women did their best work late in life. "It surprises me that I'm

TEAM ADAPTATIONS OF ACTION COMEDIES have become the bleeding head of box office these days, with the famous sequel, "The Jack Knight," grossing a million dollars worldwide and "Iron Man" hitting the $100 million mark. So, the release of the new comic book adaptation, "Watchmen," has elicited special attention and extra excitement. But, how does it pan out as a film?

Mugged by Jack London, whose "OW" some contend was not celebrated for its original and dramatic results, "Wharfmen" is similarly struggle for its own issues.

Baseball ownership

In its uniquely implied subtext, set in 1985 in the United States, nuclear war appears to be imminent between the US and the Soviet Union. But, the novel's main focus is on the mysterious serial murders of the world's supermodels.

That's right, in this movie's universe, as pebbles inhabit the planet as usually more ordinary folks, helping us things right when the need arises. Mystifying, however, somebody is bumping them off one by one, so some of them need to put a stop to the social murder of their superhuman colleagues and friends.

Eventually, they discover that the billings are part of a bigger plot that involves one of their former customers. Before that discovery is noticed at, however, doesn't have to contend with them and occasionally repetitive everything that overflows the movie's time frame toward a half hour.

Personally, we didn't stretch off despite the film's length and slow progression. Because the sounds kept us entertained and occasionally reassured. Granted, some of the euphemisms in the music come off as rather tacky and lacking in grandeur, but others help make up for this lack.

Leading off of them is the all-gospelful Dr. Manhattan (Billy Crudup), who has become a virtual energy field all by himself; can communicate under water, teleports himself; Mary at a moment's notice, etc.

Far-out images

Increasingly, even this super-chaperone has evolved highly human needs, like wanting to be loved. Thus does the film present a more accessible view of some superheroes, even as its live-action images provide the courage and beauty that inspire comic-book devotees.

It's too bad that the movie's thin plotting and excessive length eventually say to us: egg, more and creativity. And, the movie's focus is a relative beach, considerably south of the artistic realizations of a phantom's pyrrhic.

Still, we choose to read this appreciation as an upbeat note, because our long journey with the movie gave us enough reward to delight in making it worth the occasionally tedious ride.
